The party will sail for Europe Saturday, 29th.

Scull Race at Saratoga Won by Cornell.

SARATOGA, July 20.—Francis, of Cornell, son of [illegible] of the Troy Times, led all the way from [illegible] to the finish, rowing effectively, but not [illegible] and winning with ease. Danforth, of [illegible], was second, about two lengths behind, he [illegible] great determination, but was out[illegible]. He was not distanced at the end of the [illegible]. Hamley, of Princeton, was third. Weeks, [illegible], stopped rowing prematurely. If he had made this mistake he could have been [illegible]. Cornell's double victory excited wild enthusiasm among her friends.

[illegible] Race Won by Cornell.

[illegible] race it was generally conceded would be a very close contest. The result justified this prediction. The signal for the start was given about 11.25 A. M., and three [illegible] on their journey together. The Harvard, with characteristic dash, secured the lead, rowing about 36 strokes to the minute. Cornell closely behind, pulling in a ragged style. Then came Columbia close up. [illegible] positions were unchanged to the end [illegible] mile, then a sad misfortune befell Columbia, one of her men catching a crab, and throwing the whole boat out of time. This misfortune [illegible] to abandon the race. In the [illegible], Cornell, by sheer strength, rowed Harvard [illegible], gaining slowly but surely at every stroke, and obtaining a decided lead by the end of the [illegible] mile. The Harvard boys rowed all together, pulling and spurting with great determination, fighting every inch of water, but the fates were against them. Their stronger rivals gradually [illegible] and Cornell passed the winning post several lengths ahead. Several of the crew were [illegible] and they finished the course in a very ragged and unsightly fashion, but their strength won the victory. Harvard rowed well to the last, but was overmatched. The triple victory of Cornell was applauded, of course, but the enthusiasm was not of a very hearty description. The majority of the spectators were too badly disappointed to cheer.

[illegible] returned from the lake after the regatta and found the hotel and stores decked with [illegible] colors. About 7 o'clock the Cornell winners [illegible] at the entrance of the plaza by a procession of students some 200 in number, with a band, [illegible] the president of the rowing association. The [illegible], in an omnibus, and with a wagon with [illegible], marched up and down Broadway, the [illegible] carrying brooms with [illegible] colors. The band at Congress Hall and [illegible] Union were on the piazzas playing, and the [illegible] as they passed. The regatta ball [illegible] the U. S. Grand Union and Congress Hall was [illegible] attended. The prize flags were presented to the victors at Grand Union at midnight, by Wm. [illegible] Evarts.

College Athletic Sports at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, July 20.—The athletic sports of the [illegible] at Glen Mitchel began to-day by a 3-mile [illegible] Noble, of Princeton, won, Mer[illegible] 2d. The first 100 yards race was by [illegible], of Williams, W. J. Wakefield, of [illegible] time, 11 seconds. Merrill, of Dartmouth, [illegible] of Wesleyan, walked in the graduates' [illegible]; the latter won. W. J. Waldron won [illegible] race, making the fastest time on record. [illegible] Princeton, won the mile race.

He fell [illegible] to the sidewalk and pleaded for [illegible], the son all the while taking aim for another [illegible] which he made at once, sending two more [illegible] into his body. The cause of this heartless [illegible] is said to be momentary insanity caused [illegible] health, extending over a period of 7 years.

OMAHA, July 20.—Capt. Nickerson, aid-de-camp to Gen. Crook, returned last evening from Rawlins, [illegible] he went on business connected with securing the attendance of the White river and Bear [illegible] Indians of Colorado to unite with Gen. Crook in the campaign against the Sioux. Although there was a delay of about twenty days occasioned by the [illegible] of the employed scout or agent, [illegible] will nevertheless be able to reach Crook in a few days to take a hand in the war against the [illegible], who are their inveterate enemies, and who have hunted them for years at every possible chance.

At noon to-day the [illegible] raging and rapidly nearing Harwick, the [illegible] being ten miles long and two or three miles [illegible]. Some thirty square miles of territory is burned over, and the loss is roughly estimated at [illegible]. A force of 300 men are vainly endeavoring to stay the progress of the fire.

Anderson entered Enfield, who won 2d, 3d [illegible] heats; Janesville second, Kirkwood third. Time, 2:27½, 2:28, 2:33¼, 2:30¼. Second was [illegible] premium for $2,000, for 2:20 class. [illegible] won the last three heats, Little Fred second, [illegible] R. third. Time, 2:21½, 2:23, 2:22¼.

The Petitioners in Favor of [illegible] Confident of Success.

[illegible], July 20.—The lawyers who are to plead [illegible] executive clemency on behalf of their clients, the whisky convicts of St. Louis and Chicago are [illegible] of success.

Collision of an Excursion Train.

CINCINNATI, July 20.—The Times special says a [illegible] of three cars of Odd Fellows on an excursion from Newark to Yellow Springs, Ohio, collided with a hand car near Columbus this morning and ran off the track down a bank 30 feet. Davis Reynolds, fireman, was killed, Jas Freeman, engineer, badly injured. J. C. Taylor of Columbus was injured internally, and several others bruised slightly.

Yacht Mohawk Capsized and all on Board Lost.

STAPLETON, S. C., July 20.—The celebrated yacht [illegible] was struck by a squall off Stapleton Club [illegible], at 4:35 P. M., and turned bottom up. All on board were drowned. Up to 5 P. M. no one had been found. Commodore Garner and wife were of the party. Small boats are out looking for [illegible]. It is thought they were all in the cabin, as it was raining hard at the time. Great excitement prevails at the club House, and there are three tugs trying to tow her in on the beach. But they think she will sink before they can beach her. [illegible] she was all out of sight at 5:10, with the exception of her bowsprit.

Decline in Wheat.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The rapid decline in wheat during the past week of about 2c a bushel in this market caused but two small failures and the cash wheat to-day has sold at 78 against $1 0[illegible] at the first of the month, there seems to be no panic in the market, and the opinion obtains that the prices, if not already at the bottom are near it. The decline was brought about by several causes, the over glut in foreign markets caused by the almost unprecedented shipments of the last three months across the Atlantic from this country, the fine crop prospects in England and France, the fine weather which favors the harvest in this country, and the dullness which seems to be increasing daily in all the controlling wheat markets of the land. There is a shipping margin between this point and New York. Just now the prospect is not very encouraging for high prices in the immediate future. The bull element still speak cheerfully and it is quite evident the heaviest dealers are carrying wheat, and whenever the [illegible] as is their custom, make it count. They say that wheat can be raised here for these prices, and that the least favorable news for holders will send the price of cereals up like a rocket. Farmers do not give very encouraging reports of the coming harvest, but as they are always full their statements must be taken out with some allowance. Wheat will be, according to all appearances two-thirds or perhaps three quarters of a good average crop.

Nominations by the Missouri Convention.

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—Up to midnight the only nominations received from the convention is that of John S. Phelps for Governor over Geo. G. Vest. The vote was 181½ to 91½. The other candidates presented were States Attorney Hockaday, 19, and M. V. L. McClelland, 15. The nomination of Phelps is regarded as a great victory over the ex-Confederate elements of the State, and giving great strength to the Tilden and Hendricks ticket. The convention is now in night session but it is doubtful whether any further nominations will be received to-night in time to telegraph. The convention did nothing to-night except to listen to speeches from Gen. Phelps and Col. Vest, and then adjourned till to-morrow evening.

Trade Sale of Flannels, &c.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The great auction trade sale of flannels and blankets was concluded to-day. The attendance was large, the bidding spirited and prices fair. Cotton goods quiet and unchanged, medium and dark prints in fair demand, woolen goods remained quiet; cardigan jacket shirts and drawers in moderate request.

The sale closed this afternoon; the sum realized being about $2,500,000. The prices at which the goods sold were about 20 per cent. below the lowest market prices of to-day, and will have a moral influence on governing the rates for the season. The rooms were well filled and competition was lively. During the bidding there did not seem much excitement; but as soon as a price had been fixed it appeared as if every person in the room was desirous of securing the goods.

Prize for American and Russian Trotting Stallions.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The publishers of the Turf, Field and Farm have offered a prize of $10,000 in gold to be competed for by Russian and American trotting stallions, the race to come off at Philadelphia in October. Mr. Merder, secretary of the General Directory of the Imperial Stud of Russia, holds out a prospect that the match will take place.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Encouraging Prospects for Agreement on the Appropriation Bills.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Prospects for agreement on all pending appropriation bills, and the adjournment of Congress next week are to-day very encouraging. The adoption by the House of the conference report on the army appropriation bill, receding from all its propositions for reducing officers' pay and for the organization of the army, and postponing all these questions for deliberate action next session, would seem to leave the House no ground on which to resist the Senate's offer for similar compromises concerning other proposed changes of law in regard to the salaries of civil officers and the reorganization of the Indian Department.

New Land Bill.

The bill reported by Booth, of California from Senate public lands committee, under the instructions of Sargent's resolution to carry into effect the provision of the 3d section of the Pacific railroad act of 1860 makes this proviso a condition running with the grant. It also provides that if any company refuses to convey land to any pre-emption settler at $1 25 per acre and such land is not disposed of by a bona fide sale within three years from the completion of its road, such settler shall have his remedy in equity in the U. S. courts to compel conveyance, and shall be entitled to damages if it is shown that the company has fraudulently conveyed its lands by deeds of trust, etc., for the purpose of preventing the settler from acquiring title. The written report accompanying the bill without attempting to fix the exact dates at which the Pacific railroads were respectively completed shows by the official statement of the secretary of the Interior Department that all of them have been legally declared completed more than three years ago. It is therefore proper to supply a remedy to enforce the law, which is now disregarded.

Hendricks' Game of Bluff.

The Times' Washington special says: There have been several converts to soft money in the House recently. Hendricks' influence is hinted at. Hendricks has certainly written some letters which are shown with great caution and the soft money people claim that his acceptance depends upon the repeal of the resumption act. The letter if so stating, may be understood as a game of bluff, for undoubtedly Hendricks will accept. Meanwhile the announcement is made privately that the Governor will again be at Saratoga next week, and that arrangements will be made about official letters of acceptance.

Franking Campaign Speeches.

The Tribune's Washington special says the examination of the Congressional Record, which publishes debates of Congress, may explain in some degree the willingness of so many members of both houses of Congress to remain in Washington during the hot weather of this summer. They are really doing their Presidential campaign work under the act [illegible] something more than a year ago, the Congressional Record is the only public document which passed through the mail without payment of postage. This law enables members of Congress to frank to their constituents as formerly, and it is noticeable that during the last two weeks numerous Representatives of both sides of the House have obtained leave to print speeches which are not yet delivered, but which when they appeared in the record, have been found to be simply campaign documents such as members of both parties are in the habit of flooding the country with during a presidential canvass; in other words, the abolition of the franking privilege has made it necessary for politicians of both political parties to get their campaign documents into the Congressional Record in order to escape the necessity of paying postage on them.

Gov. Chamberlin Consulting about the Hamburg Riot.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Gov. Chamberlin of South Carolina, arrived here to-day, and had a consultation with Secretary Cameron and Attorney General Taft regarding the recent trouble at Hamburg. The Governor was fully informed as to what the views of the General Government are that South Carolina should execute its laws and bring to prompt trial and punishment the parties who are guilty of having incited the riotous demonstrations and murders.

It is just reported that the impression is that the administration intends to insist upon the State laws being executed in this particular case. The conference between Gov. Chamberlin and the Cabinet officers mentioned, were very earnest—these officials representing to the fullest extent the views of the President and Cabinet as to the absolute necessity of prompt action by the State authorities.

Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Agreed Upon.

The conference committee on the sundry civil service appropriation bill to-day reached a final agreement by the House conferees acquiescing in the Senate amendment striking out the clause by which the House proposed to repeal the national registration law.

Report Exonerating Knott.

CHICAGO, July 19.—The Tribune's Washington special says the committee on judiciary will report the result in exonerating Knott from the charges of Blaine that Knott suppressed the telegram from Caldwell. The committee says Knott was not guilty and had faith that he was justified in inquiring into the authenticity of the dispatch before communicating it to the committee. It is expected the Republican members will sign the report.

Bills in Conference.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—There are now only a few bills in conference [illegible] legislative, executive and judicial, [illegible] diplomatic, military academy and Indian appropriation bills.

Naval Investigation.

The vote on the adoption of the committee's report referring the question of the impeachment of Robeson to the judiciary committee was 7 to 1—a strict party vote. The Republican members [illegible] were [illegible] permission to [illegible] different [illegible] the committee [illegible] they claim the greatest justice [illegible] Mr. Robeson by the action of the committee and this report.

Glover, chairman of the real estate pool committee, states to-night that it is not yet decided to impeach Robeson [illegible] the majority seem to favor [illegible] the Jay Cooke & Co matter to the judiciary committee for action looking toward impeachment and demands that said Geo. M. Robeson be dealt with according to the [illegible] laws of the United States. The committee recommended the adoption of resolutions that Robeson be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors in office, that the letters and testimony in the case be referred to the judiciary committee with instructions to prepare and report without delay suitable articles of impeachment against him, and that a committee of five of the House be appointed to proceed to the Senate and there impeach Robeson in the name of the House of high crimes and misdemeanors in office and request the Senate to take such action as they deem appropriate.

It is stated that the Senate is resolved that if the House insist upon the articles of impeachment against Robeson, it would stay here and try him.

The House Backs Down on the Army Appropriations.

The House leaders who have been attempting all the session to reduce the army have been obliged to abandon their attempts for the present session at least, and the army remains undiminished, as it seems likely for some years to come.

Tilden and Hendricks Expected to Meet Again.

Democrats report here (Washington) to-night that it is expected Tilden and Hendricks will meet again at Saratoga. The friends of Hendricks insist that Tilden must make some concession, and are far from satisfied with the report that at the late conference, Hendricks surrendered to Tilden. The Democrats seem less anxious to get away from Washington, their idea seeming to be that the resumption act question must be settled before the adjournment.

Report of Real Estate Pool Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Glover, chairman of the committee on real estate pool, will present the following report in the House to-day, the majority of the committee having agreed on the same.

The committee on the real estate pool and Jay Cooke indebtedness would respectfully report they have come into possession of official evidence, some of which is over his own signature and addressed to the chairman of this committee, of the malfeasance in office of G. M. Robeson, secretary of the Navy, and consider it their duty to lay the evidence before the House.

The Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The sundry civil appropriation bill as sent to the President for his approval to-day contains the following items for the Pacific coast, besides those making appropriations for lighthouse services, Benicia arsenal, coast survey and fish propagation, concerning all of which there has been no agreement between the House and Senate: $60,000 for San Francisco appraisers' stores, $27,000 for San Francisco sub treasury building, $80,000 for Mare Island dry dock, $25,000 for surveying private land claims, $3,000 for the incidental expenses of the California Surveyor General's office, $2,500 for his salary and $8,000 for his clerks, $2,[illegible] each for the salaries of surveyor generals of Nevada and Oregon, $1,500 each for incidental expenses, and $3,000 each for clerks, and similarly reduced appropriations for Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Nevada, New Mexico and Arizona. $300,000 are appropriated in a lump sum for surveying the public lands throughout the country to be paid for the work of surveying as fixed by the House and heretofore published.

How to Bring Back Financial Prosperity.

A letter from ex-Senator Stewart, arguing that the principal cause of the universal depression is the contraction of the world's stock of money and the demonetization of silver, has been published. He maintains the United States has the right and power to stop contraction, and says let all the mints be set to work coining the standard silver dollar abrogated by mistake, or by covert design in 1873, and when coined, use it to pay the debt according to contract. This alone will reduce the price of gold until gold and silver dollars shall again be equal. This would restore silver as money, restore property to its real value, secure the development of silver mines and save the country from bankruptcy. The letter is brief and forcible, and has attracted considerable attention.

Efforts to Force a Repeal of the Resumption Act.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The Evening Journal's special from Washington, says State Auditor Henderson, and the state treasurer of Indiana, arrived here last night as special representatives of Gov. Hendricks to urge upon the Democratic leaders the necessity of prompt action upon the question of repealing the resumption act. They have been in conference with some hard money Democrats, and have told them plainly that unless Congress repeals the resumption clause of 1879 before adjourning Indiana will be hopelessly lost to the Democratic party in October and November. They represent that the inflation element will be satisfied with nothing short of the repeal of that clause, and there is an inflation ticket in the field which will poll from 60,000 to 80,000 votes nearly all of which will come from the Democratic ranks. If the House will repeal the resumption act, Gov. Hendricks is certain the Independent ticket will be withdrawn in favor of the regular Democratic ticket. The two envoys had the Speaker's room placed at their disposal to-day by Mr. Sayler, and have had consultation with many Democratic members to-day, including nearly all the Independent delegation. As the special representatives of Hendricks, they expect to induce some hard money Democrats to yield to the extent of voting for the repeal of the clause fixing 1879 as the time for resumption.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Anthony said: Among the distinguished visitors to the Centennial was the Marquis De Rochambeau, grandson of Count De Rochambeau. He had been called home suddenly and had not had time to visit the national capitol. The Marquis had inherited all the papers of his grandfather, and among them some of value as relating to the American revolution. He submitted a resolution instructing the committee on library to inquire into the expediency of obtaining the papers of Count De Rochambeau now in possession of the Marquis De Rochambeau, relating to our war for independence; agreed to.

Kelly called up the House bill to adjust the claims of the owners of land within the limits of the Klamath Indian reservation in Oregon, which was discussed until the expiration of the morning hour and laid over.

Allison from the conference committee on army appropriation bill, made a report which was agreed to. Allison said all matters relating to the organization of the army were to be submitted to a commission consisting of two members of the Senate, two members of the House the Secretary of War, and two army officers. The House had receded from all amendments relating to the reduction, organization and pay of the army. When the bill came to the Senate from the House of Representatives, it appropriated $24,3[illegible], that amount was increased by the Senate $3,231,000. The conference committee reduced the amount of increase by the Senate $1,492,191, leaving the total amount appropriated by the bill, if it should be passed $[illegible], or $1,864,500 less than the appropriation by the army bill of last year.

Windom from the conference committee on the sundry civil appropriation bill submitted a report which was read. In explanation of the report, he said the bill, as it originally passed the House, appropriated $15,256,131. The Senate added $4,126,[illegible] and as now reported, it appropriated $16,[illegible]. The total amount of reduction made for the bill as it passed the Senate was $1,153,747. The sundry civil bill now appropriates $26,644,350, or $1,011,455 72 more than the present bill. He was unable to see any great saving to the government in the reductions made in conference committee from the bill as it passed the Senate. He was not satisfied with the bill as agreed upon in conference, but he thought it the best bill which could be got under the circumstances. Among the items constituting the reductions are the following: Public printing and binding, $191,770, general expenses of District of Columbia, $500,000; revenue cutter service, $25,640; courts in Utah, $25,000, Smithsonian Institute, $30,000, elimination of rebel archives, $6,000, mints and assay offices, $54,000; new State War and Navy Department, $250,000; new building at St Louis $100,000, navy yards and stations, $580,000, improvement capitol grounds, $40,000, signal offices, $100,000, testing iron and steel $50,000, survey of public lands, $72,400, collecting revenue from sales of public lands and buildings, $25,000. He commented on what would be necessary to pass the large deficiency bill next year. The bill had been agreed on in conference. It provided that the public printer should be appointed by the President. That officer had before been elected by the Senate, but the House for several years had disputed the right of the Senate to do so and the Senate conferees thought it best to yield. The House had receded from its provision repealing the election law. After long and tedious efforts this bill had been agreed on, and he hoped the report would be agreed to.

Anthony opposed the reduction of the appropriations for the revenue cutter service. He opposed any reduction of the appropriations for the assay office.

Edmunds said he would vote against the report because it struck out the appropriation of $6,000 for the examination of rebel archives. The action of the House committee in striking out this appropriation was saying that evidence should be locked up and be of no use in sifting out facts to distinguish false from true claims against the government. The most important and valuable evidence had been found in these archives which protected the treasury. He argued that millions had been saved by the Southern claim commission on account of evidence furnished by those rebel archives. The attitude of the House of Representatives was that there should be no more inquiry by government into this fountain of evidence to defeat fraudulent claims.

Eaton said these archives had been examined and were all labeled.

Edmunds replied it required constant care to keep them in order.

Windom again urged the adoption of the report. He had no doubt there would be a large deficiency bill next year, but it would be after November, and there would be so much trouble in passing the appropriation bills, this whole report was framed upon the idea that there would be a deficiency bill next year. The report was then agreed to—yeas 29, nays 11. Those who voted in the negative were Anthony, Bruce, Conover, Edmunds, Hamlin, Harvey, Hitchcock, Ingalls, Logan, Mitchell, Morrill, Spencer. Adjourned.

House.

Jones, from the committee on railroads, reported bill incorporating U. S. Central R. R. Co. for the construction of a passenger and freight railroad from Chicago to Port Royal and Savannah, with a branch to St. Louis, referred to the committee of the whole.

Jencks offered a resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to have a careful survey made of the Union Central railroad, for which government bonds were issued.

Bland, from the committee on mines and mining, reported back the bill originally introduced by Banks to utilize the product of gold and silver mines; but the morning hour having expired the bill went over.

The Senate bill, extending the duration of the court of commissioners of Alabama claims until January next, passed.

The House then considered the South Carolina contested election case. The unanimous report of the committee is that neither the sitting member, Mackey, nor the contestant, Bulwer, is entitled to the seat.

Waiting asked leave to offer a resolution authorizing the committee on public lands to prosecute through a sub committee during recess investigations into the Northern Pacific Railroad Company's transactions, but objection was made by Hale who expressed his intention of objecting to all investigating during recess.

Atkins made a conference report on the army bill. The cutting down and reduction of pay of officers, which has been the point of difficulty between the two Houses is referred to a commission which is to sit during recess. The report was agreed to and the bill now goes to the President for signature.

The House then went into committee of the whole on bill for protection of the Texas frontier. Tucker explained points of difference between Banks' substitute and that offered by himself, their general purport being identical. Banks modified his substitute for the 2d section to meet the want of Tucker and it was stated by Schleicher that it was acceptable to the sub-committee on the Texas border troubles. Tucker's substitute was rejected and that offered by Banks adopted. The committee then rose and reported bill to the House, agreed to without division.

After a long discussion report was adopted, and the bill now goes to the President for signature.

Randall, from the committee on appropriations, reported a bill appropriating $7,000 for the expenses of the joint select committee on Chinese immigration, passed. Also a bill extending till 31st July the bill making temporary provision for the expenses of government; passed.

Phillips made a conference report on the bill for the sale of the reservation of the confederated Otoe and Missouri Indians in Kansas and Nebraska.

Bland opposed the report and bill as part of a policy to transfer all the Indian tribes to the Indian Territory, and a policy which he said was a blow aimed at the prosperity of St. Louis and for the advantage of Chicago. The report was not agreed to; ayes 65, nays 98.

Simpson, from the committee on patents, reported back the Senate bill to punish counterfeiters of trade marks, passed. Adjourned.

THE IMPEACHMENT TRIAL.

WASHINGTON, July 19.

Consideration of the articles of impeachment was resumed and J. S. Evans was sworn. After some discussion as to the course of the examination Conkling submitted the following order which was agreed to: Ordered that the managers proceed to examine the witness Evans in chief, or should they decline to do so, the respondent may proceed to examine the witness in chief subject to the right of the managers to cross examine like any other witness.

Manager McMahon then proceeded to examine Evans. He recounted the circumstances under which he obtained his appointment. He first saw Belknap in Dubuque Iowa then at Washington. He was introduced to Belknap the second time by Gen. F. W. Rice. Gen. Belknap told him the appointment was already promised. Afterwards he, however, made a contract with Marsh by which he received the appointment in consideration of paying $12,000 a year. The person to whom Gen. Belknap had promised the appointment was Marsh. He paid Marsh various sums according to contract aggregating over $12,000. Evans testified that he never had any conversation with the Secretary of War in relation to the payment of money. Marsh had no money invested in the business.

Sargent asked if the managers did not intend to question the witness about the conversation between Evans and Marsh.

McMahon said he had no objections. Evans then related in substance the conversation between himself and Marsh. It appears he wanted $8,000 a year but Evans said he could not pay that and the figure fixed on was $15,000. Next morning however he saw in the newspapers that some of the troops were removed from the post and he told Marsh he could not pay the sum agreed upon. They finally compromised on $12,000.

Sargent asked if Marsh told him what he intended to do with the money. Witness said he did not.

Cross examination by Carpenter—Belknap never requested witness to see Marsh. It was in reply to a statement of the witness as to the amount he had invested at Fort Sill, that Belknap said he would see Marsh who was to be in the city soon.

Question—Did Marsh say to you he had to divide with anybody? Answer—He never breathed anything of the kind; never heard any talk about money being paid to the Secretary of War until the publication of the article in the New York Tribune in 1872. He never had any indulgence from the Secretary of War not common to post traders; never paid the Secretary of War a cent for the appointment, did not tell the Secretary he had made a contract with Marsh, and could have reduced prices for goods had it not been for the payment of $12,000 for the position; knew nothing of anybody advising the Secretary in regard to the agreement between Marsh and himself. He never heard Marsh intimate that the money paid him under the contract was to be divided with any other person; remembered a letter of Marsh asking that his appointment be made out in the name of John S. Evans. He treated that letter as any other business letter of the department. The letter remained in the department about four years, and until the resignation of Gen. Belknap.

Carpenter announced that this closed the case for the defense.

Manager McMahon stated that the managers had nothing to offer in rebuttal.

Carpenter asked that some arrangement be made about summing up the case, and announced that the three counsel for the defense desired to be heard.

The manager suggested that time for argument be limited, he said only two managers desired to be heard on the question of fact but if there was to be an argument as to the effect of the two thirds vote on the question of jurisdiction, a third manager desired to be heard.

Carpenter said counsel for defense would argue all there was in the case, and he regarded that as one of the best points.

Conkling submitted an order that three managers and three counsel may be heard in such order as they may arrange among themselves.

Edmunds moved to amend so as to limit the time of the argument to six hours for each side. Rejected, ayes, 16; nays, 29. The order of Conkling was agreed to, and the Senate sitting as a Court of Impeachment, adjourned until to-morrow.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Senate refused to order the adjournment of the impeachment trial. At the close of Blair's argument, Black said Carpenter was sick and was to reply to the Manager following Blair. Manager Lapham, assigned to open for the prosecution, being too sick to go out to-day, his place was taken by Manager Lynde.

In conclusion, Blair again argued that his client should be dismissed, because there was not a legal two thirds vote of the Senate asserting jurisdiction.

Merrimon submitted two questions which he said he would like to have discussed by the counsel: First was a Senator dissenting on the question of jurisdiction not bound by the majority, as a dissenting judge on supreme court bench was bound by the majority; and second, what was meant by the term "conviction" in the constitution—whether there could be conviction without disqualification to hold office?

Blair replied that a Senator voting in the minority was not bound by the majority, and quoted from 12 Peters in support of his argument. In regard to the second question, he expressed the opinion that there could be a conviction without disqualification to hold office though he had not examined into the matter carefully.

After some discussion as to whether the managers should go on with arguments on the side of the prosecution to-day, in the absence of Carpenter, who was to reply, the Senate, sitting as a court, on motion of Conkling, took a recess of thirty minutes. Upon reassembling the impeachment proceedings were suspended temporarily and legislative business resumed.

Windom introduced a bill to continue for ten days from date the provisions of the act to provide temporarily for the expenses of the government; passed.

Anthony introduced a bill authorizing the Congressional printer to continue the public printing for a period of ten days in advance of the regular appropriation; passed.

The impeachment trial was then resumed, and it was announced that Manager Lapham, who had been assigned to open for the prosecution, was too sick to go on to-day. His place was taken by Manager Lynde, who commented on the fact of the vote of less than two-thirds in favor of jurisdiction, and argued that in the impeachment of Judge Barnard, various Senators who voted against jurisdiction voted in favor of conviction. The question of jurisdiction in this case had been decided according to law and was binding upon all Senators. He quoted from numerous legal authorities in support of his views, and when he concluded, the Senate sitting as a court adjourned until to-morrow.

Legislative business was resumed, and a message was received from the House announcing the passage by that body of the bill to continue the act to provide temporarily for the expenditures of the Government until July 31st. The Senate concurred therein and adjourned.

Probable Verdict in the Belknap Case.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The Inter-Ocean's Washington special says: There is very little speculation in regard to the verdict in the Belknap impeachment case, for the acquittal is regarded as a foregone conclusion as more than two thirds of the Senate have already expressed themselves of the opinion that there was no law under which they could try the case.

WHEELER'S ACCEPTANCE LETTER.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Wheeler accepts, in a letter, of which the following is an extract: To the summary of doctrine enunciated by the convention, I give my cordial assent. The Republican party has entrenched in the organic law of our land the doctrine that liberty is the supreme, unchangeable law for every foot of American soil. It is the mission of that party to give full effect to this principle by securing to every American citizen complete liberty and equality in the exercise of all civil, political and public rights. This will be accomplished only when citizens, without regard to color, shall wear this panoply of citizenship as fully and as securely in the canebrakes of Louisiana as on the banks of the St. Lawrence. Upon the question of our Southern relations, my views were recently expressed as a member of the committee of the U. S. House of Representatives. Those views remain unchanged, and were thus expressed: We of the North delude ourselves in expecting that the masses of the south, so far behind in many of the attributes of enlightened improvement and civilization, are, in a brief period of ten or fifteen years, to be transformed into our model Northern communities. That can only come through a long course of patient waiting to which no one can set certain bounds. There will be a good deal of unavoidable friction, which will call for forbearance, which will have to be relieved by temperate fostering care of the government. One of the most potent, if not indispensable, agencies in this direction will be the devising of some system to aid in the education of the masses. The fact that there are whole counties in Louisiana in which there is no public schools is full of suggestion. We compelled these people to remain in the Union, and now duty and interest demand that we leave no just means untried to make them good loyal citizens. How to diminish the friction, how to stimulate the elevation of this portion of our country, are problems addressing themselves to our best and wisest statesmanship. The foundation for these efforts must be made in satisfying the southern people that they are to have equal, exact justice accorded to them. Give them to the fullest extent every blessing which the government confers upon the most favored. Give them no just cause for complaint, and then hold them by every necessary means to an exact and rigid observance of all their duties and obligations under the constitution and its amendments, to secure to all within their borders manhood and citizenship, with every right thereto belonging. The just obligations to public creditors, who credited us when the government was in the throes of threatened dissolution, and as an indispensable condition of its salvation, guaranteed by the lives of brave defenders, are to be kept with religious faith, as are all pledges subsidiary thereto and confirmatory thereof. In my judgment the pledge of Congress of January 14, 1875, for the redemption of notes the United States in coin is the plighted faith of the nation, and the national honor, which is simply honesty and justice to the people whose permanent welfare and prosperity are to be dependent upon true money as a basis of pecuniary transactions, all demands scrupulous observance of this pledge, and it is the duty of Congress to supplement with such legislation as shall be necessary. The common schools of the land should be preserved in all their vigor, while in accordance with the spirit of the constitution all their endowments should be secured by every possible and proper guaranty against every form of sectarian influence or control. There should be the strictest economy in the expenditures of the government consistent with its effective administration, and unnecessary offices should be abolished. Office should be conferred only on the basis of high character and particular fitness, and should be administered only as public trusts and not for private advantage. The foregoing are chief among the cardinal principles of the Republican party, and to carry them into full and practical effect is the work it now has on hand. To the completion of its great mission we address ourselves in hope and confidence, cheered and stimulated by the recollection of its past achievements, remembering that under God it is to that party that we are indebted in this Centennial year of our existence for a preserved, unbroken Union; for the fact that there is no master nor slave throughout our broad domains, and that emancipated millions look upon former republics as symbols of the fulfilled declaration that all men were created free and equal and a guaranty of their own equality under the law with the most highly favored citizen of the land. To the intelligence and conscience of all who require a good government with good money and universal prosperity, the Republican party, not unmindful of the imperfection and short comings of human organization, yet with the honest purpose of its masses promptly to retrieve all errors and punish all offenders against the laws of the country confidently submits its claims for the continued support of the American people.

The Press on Wheeler's Letter.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Herald characterizes Wheeler's letter of acceptance as judicious and manly and also says the Northern people will not abandon the negroes to the tender mercies of their persecutors without assurances of protection from a Democratic President, and calls on Tilden to give these.

The Times says the letter is frank and temperate in spirit. Its modest firmness in touching the issues of the hour cannot fail to impress all candid minds favorably. His views of the Republican duty to give full effect to the constitutional amendments, are not in a partisan or narrow spirit, but based on the most generous appreciation of the difficulties under which the South labors and by the most liberal desire to give to that section every aid that can reasonably be asked in process of conforming itself to the new state of things. Justice to all, the removal or prevention of all cause of fair complaint in the conduct of national government, and co-operation in the work of general education—these are the broad and simple outlines of the principles which Wheeler thinks should guide our course in this important matter. The Republican candidates for the Presidency and Vice Presidency occupy positions entirely harmonious in regard to the vital question of the national credit, there has been no need of a conference between them to arrange the terms in which they should respectively conceal their views, or the means by which they should in common seek to mislead the public. It is plain that if voters want honest money, the way to get it is the election of Hayes and Wheeler, while if the country does not want honest money, the way to avoid it is by the election of Tilden and Hendricks. But in the latter event it is only certain that they will not get honest money.

The Tribune says the letter is a straightforward, manly statement of the position of the party upon the issue involved in the elections, evading nothing, indulging in no ambiguity of [illegible] or expression, leaving no doubt in the mind of the reader as to the candidate's views and opinions on the leading questions which occupy the public mind and divide parties. The closing sentence of the letter epitomizes most admirably the whole situation; it presents the whole philosophy of current politics, and summarizes the Republican argument—good government, good will, good money and universal prosperity, cover the important questions of civil service reform, Southern relations, currency and wise economy in expenditures.

The Tribune in another article says if the question is asked what the Democratic party, which puts Tilden forward in the hope of coming into power upon the strength of his popularity, has done to forfeit the public confidence, we might point to strange conjunctions of candidates on the ticket, the ambiguous utterances of the platform and record of the present Democratic Congress. To this we might add the history of the Democratic success in Missouri, Connecticut and Pennsylvania and point to the seats in the [illegible] which have been filled by Democratic Legislatures. This is a question of parties, not persons; of principles and policies and not individual peculiarities.

The Evening Post says it is a pity the Democratic newspapers have been unable to publish Wheeler's letter. It offers a capital occasion to show just where their party stands upon the several important questions. If they could prove that Wheeler is altogether wrong upon these questions and that their own candidate for Vice President is entirely right, they would simplify the situation. Wheeler's views of the Southern question are [illegible] special prominence by the recent events in South Carolina. It is easy to see why the Hamburg massacre has attracted a great deal of attention on the part of [illegible] who actually give little heed to stories of outrage. There is little or no dispute about the essential facts. The case is not one manufactured by [illegible] speech-makers for campaign uses. It is not the product of partisan leaders, who instigate violence that they may profit by it. The facts of the case being beyond dispute, the people everywhere are asking whether it is well not only for the blacks but for the whites; not only of South Carolina, but of the whole country, that such things can be [illegible] anywhere in the United States. Wheeler's words are easy of application to the latest Southern troubles. What has Hendricks to say on the subject? Has he anything better to offer? Wheeler is not as specific as Hayes in respect to civil service reform, but what he says of economy, effective administration, good government, good will, good money and universal prosperity, will be approved by all candid citizens.

David Newsome informs the Statesman that the crops in Howell prairie never promised better. Harvest will commence on Monday next. The hay crop is good on young meadows, but light on old land. The crops are being rapidly developed since the late rains.

Mr. Curtis B[illegible], employed in the sawmill at Canemah, had the misfortune to get caught in a belt and was thrown around so violently that he was completely stripped of his clothing. He received no serious injury, though his head and one hand were badly bruised—little enough, considering what he went through.

Capt. J. W. Cochran informs the Democrat that his proposition for putting a line of boats on the river is very favorably entertained in Benton county, and a committee of two of her best citizens have volunteered to canvass the county, and they expect to have no trouble in committing 200,000 bushels of wheat to the proposition.

The delegation chosen by the several subordinate granges of Linn county met at Odd Fellows Hall on the 14th inst. and selected the following named members as representatives in the State Grange next [illegible]: Frank Pike, S. A. Dawson, G. F. Crawford, John Bryant, W. H. Wiles and Charles Loves. The Convention also instructed the delegation to use their influence for the separation of the executive from the [illegible] arm of the Order within this jurisdiction.

GRANGE HALL DEDICATION.

BUTTEVILLE, July 15, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

At a meeting of Butteville Grange on the 15th inst. the following report of the special committee appointed to visit Butte Creek Grange No. 82, on the occasion of the dedication of its new hall, was submitted, which was adopted and the secretary instructed to apply for its publication in the OREGONIAN:

Worthy Master: Your committee appointed to visit Butte Creek Grange and witness the dedication ceremonies which took place on the 8th instant would ask to submit the following report.

The attendance from the town and neighboring granges and [illegible] of the vicinity was large. The [illegible] had prepared a [illegible] dinner, which was [illegible] in the grove, and all who [illegible] to a bountiful [illegible] hour was [illegible]. At 1:30 P. M. the [illegible] to the new building, which is a [illegible]. The first [illegible] hall. The [illegible] would be public and [illegible] in the open air, as the hall was insufficient to accommodate the large audience in attendance. The Worthy Master [illegible] W. B. [illegible], of Oregon City, who in a [illegible] voice [illegible], he was not aware that the ceremony for use on occasions like the present, which had been adopted at the late session of the National Grange held at Louisville, has as yet reached our State. But in the absence of the regular form he would proceed to perform the service for which we are here assembled, which is to dedicate this new hall as a lodge room to the use of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry. In concluding the ceremonial exercises, the Worthy Deputy presented to the Master in appropriate words the Charter of his Grange, which was neatly framed, accompanying the action with the injunction that it now becomes his duty to see that it was kept inviolate within the doors of the hall.

State Deputy Handall then delivered an interesting and impressive address, and was followed by Brother J. W. Grim, whose remarks were well received by a very attentive audience. The exercises were [illegible] with singing by the choir. The out doors meeting at 2.30, P. M. adjourned, and at 3 o'clock Butte Creek Grange opened for the first time in its new hall, whose edifice is truly a structure worthy to mark the energy and [illegible] of the Patrons of that locality.

The subjects of general interest which occupied the attention of the speakers were, the ennobling influences which are to be derived from [illegible] by the [illegible] question which was [illegible], and one in which united harmonious action throughout the length and breadth of this valley is [illegible] among the producing [illegible], is to the end, that no monopoly should ever be permitted to levy an extortionate tax or unjust toll upon the commerce of the [illegible] great thoroughfare, the Willamette river.

Your committee must bear witness to the earnest, good fellowship and [illegible] which characterized the meeting of Butte Creek Grange, and from which it is believed the members of this grange could learn a [illegible] wholesome lesson.

Your committee would therefore recommend to the members of Butteville Grange, the great propriety of making [illegible] visits to our neighboring granges, [illegible] occasions of more than ordinary interest. We would also further advise that this grange hold at least two meetings per annum, mainly for the purpose of entertaining members from abroad. An occasional day thus spent in social interchange of thought and experience, cannot but redound to the permanent advantage of all who [illegible] engage in such deliberations.

A more interesting grange meeting, though of short duration it has seldom fell to the lot of your committee to attend. The members were cheerful, all seemed pervaded with that brotherly feeling which would dictate the wisdom of standing firmly by that just law which reads, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them."

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 21, 1876.

TILDEN AND THE TWEED RING.

The New York Times, it may be remembered, was the first of the New York papers to set seriously about breaking up the Tweed ring. It started and headed the movement which resulted in the downfall of that ring and rescued the city from the thieves who were robbing it. Since the nomination of Mr. Tilden unusual efforts have been made to secure this honor for Mr. Tilden. He has been denominated by his admirers the "Hercules who strangled the Hydra of corruption." But when investigation is made into the matter, it will be seen that the real part taken by Mr. Tilden in that good work was very small. It should be borne in mind that all the city officials in New York at the time were Democrats, and that the only way to secure the appointment of any official was by Democratic influence. One of the great obstacles in the way of the anti-Tweed reformers' success, was the difficulty of getting possession of books of any members of the ring, which could be used as evidence against them. Mr. Tilden, who had previously been urged to join the reform movement and declined, was induced two months after it had been started, and after it seemed likely to prove successful, to obtain the appointment of Andrew Green to the office of City Comptroller. Mr. Green, coming into possession of some of the books, at once supplied the reform committee, of which Mr. Evarts and Mr. O'Conor were two, with the necessary evidence, and law proceedings were immediately commenced. Upon this act is chiefly based the claim of Mr. Tilden's friends that he broke the Tweed ring. The other proof brought forward to sustain this claim is that he furnished some figures showing the amount of the money transactions of some members of the ring. The truth is that being a bank director in a bank where some of the ring then kept their accounts, Mr. Tilden allowed an accountant to make abstracts from the bank's books to show how much money these ring men handled. These are about the only things Tilden ever did to "strangle the Hydra of corruption," etc. These certainly constitute no great claim to what is demanded for him. The truth is, Tilden is a "trained politician"—he fights for success, and with such men what is expedient is identical with what is right. In the Tweed matter Tilden did not mean to take sides until he could be sure which would prevail, then he did; but in a manner not calculated to strangle a small infant, to say nothing of a Hydra. The Times says:

> He remained silent under the daily appeals of the Times to withdraw his name and influence from the support of organized robbery, and he allowed his al—ce from the first public demonstration against the ring, early in 1871, to be used as a reproach against the independent Democrats who participated in it. He made no sign when the Times completed its warfare against the ring by the publication of the crushing evidences of their guilt, and when, nearly six weeks after that publication, the great indignation meeting out of which grew the committee of seventy was held in Cooper Institute, Mr. Tilden was still undecided as to the part he was to play, and flatly refused to make a public stand against Tweed. Yet this is the man who is said to have taken "Tweed in the plenitude of his power and sent him to the penitentiary."

MR. WHEELER'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

We commend Mr. Wheeler's admirable letter of acceptance of the nomination for the Vice Presidency, to the careful perusal of our readers. It is no uncertain utterance. The plainest man can read and understand it. It is a frank, manly and kindly exposition of the necessities of the country and of the duty of the Republican party. It sets forth the situation of affairs at the South, and shows what should be the course of the government towards the people of that section in a spirit that is firm and decided, yet neither harsh nor unmindful of the trials, temptations and difficulties to which they have been subjected.

On the other questions which agitate the public mind, Mr. Wheeler is also in perfect accord with Gov. Hayes. His views on the currency, on public schools and civil service reform are sound and judicious, and will no doubt have, as they deserve, the approval of the nation.

There are here, as elsewhere, many voters so trammelled by what they deem true party allegiance, that they would vote for any one their party might nominate, and would support any platform put out by it. This they glory in doing. With such as these, of course, argument is useless and a waste of time. But there are many more, who read, mark, learn and inwardly digest. They do not all belong to one party—they do not all agree in opinion either with us or themselves—but the opinions they hold are honest opinions, and when they see just and sufficient reason for changing or modifying them, they have the wisdom and the courage to do so. To these we would commend the manly, plain, straightforward letters of Gov. Hayes and Mr. Wheeler, and would ask if in them is not to be found all that need be desired or could be asked of any candidates? And if so—it is the wise, the patriotic, and the honest, manly course to support them.

America is not the only country possessing a race of trotting horses. In Russia there is a breed called the Orloff trotters, which were first introduced to public notice by Prince Orloff, one of the many lovers of the Empress Catharine. These now famous trotters are really an admirable breed—strong, hardy, stylish and speedy steppers; but we doubt their ability to compete successfully with even our second rate flyers. A pair of them were were imported to this country about seventeen or eighteen years ago by Mr. McDonald, of Baltimore, who owned at the same time, Flora Temple. He drove them to his family carriage, and they were considered fair specimens of their breed, but they could trot but very little under three minutes. The publishers of the Turf, Field and Farm have offered a prize of $10,000 to be competed for by Russian and American stallions. It is to be hoped that the race will come off, but there can be no doubt of the result. Smuggler or Thomas Jefferson, or Mambrino Gift, or any other of a half dozen others would have no trouble in beating the best Orloff trotter in Russia. The best recorded time ever made by an Orloff trotter was accomplished in Paris, where, in 1869, one trotted nearly a mile in 2:40, in a match in the Bois de Boulogne.

The passionate desire to carry a "cloud of canvas," which has characterized many members of the New York Yacht Club, will possibly be checked by the recent distressing calamity on the coast of South Carolina by which Commodore Garnier, his wife and the entire crew of the yacht Mohawk lost their lives. The Mohawk was one of the finest yachts belonging to the Club, as well as one of the largest. She was a centre board schooner and was supposed to be exceedingly staunch. In order to drive her through the water swiftly a vast quantity of sail was spread—much more than vessels of her size usually carry—and the result has been that, overtaken by a squall, she has been capsized. It was not longer than a few weeks ago that a writer in a New York paper was discussing the rig of this yacht among others and insisting that she was over-rigged.

There seems to be a settled determination on the part of Mr. Hendricks' friends and himself to compel the party to make some concession to the soft money views of the Western Democracy. It is stated that the report that Mr. Hendricks had surrendered to Mr. Tilden gave great annoyance to the friends of the former. Unless some such concession as is demanded is made there is likely to be a split in the party, and if such a concession is made where go the declarations of the platform. In fact the prospects of the ill-matched pair for winning the great race are not very bright. Even if there was unanimity in their views they would still have a heavy load to carry; but discordant and divided, their chance is hopeless.

In nominating Col. Phelps the Missouri Democracy have done well, and since the nomination is equivalent to an election, the people of that State may congratulate themselves upon the certainty of having an able and honest governor. During the war Colonel Phelps supported the government as well on the field of battle as in Congress. While in Congress he was chairman of the ways and means committee, and afterwards was in command of a portion of the Union forces in Missouri, and engaged in several battles with the Confederates. His opponents for the nomination were both Confederates. The vote by which Col. Phelps was nominated was 181½ to 91½.

Cornell University has achieved an unusual success in winning all three events at the Saratoga regatta, which has never before been done by any college.

GOV. JOHN S. PHELPS.—We learn by telegraph this morning that this gentleman has received the nomination for governor of Missouri, and as the Democracy have a majority of over forty thousand, this is equivalent to an election. Governor Phelps served in Congress from 1845 to 1863, the latter portion of his time as chairman of ways and means, a position he filled with extraordinary ability. When the war for the Union broke out he raised a regiment and fought in several battles, one among the number was at Pea Ridge, where he lost upwards of two hundred men, and every line and field officer were either killed or wounded. In the convention his two competitors were Confederates, while Col. Phelps had served in the Union army. He also, though an unswerving Democrat, was appointed military governor of Arkansas, the duties of which office he administered with strict impartiality and justice.—Evening Journal.

IN ANSWER TO THE ARTICLE IN THE EVENING Journal of yesterday, "What is Lager Beer," I would say that the writer does consider the Portland folks very poor judges of Lager Beer, and conceited as he looks to me, puts himself up for knowing all about the different Beers made in Portland. Now, in the first place, I would give the public to understand that he is no Brewer, and has never worked in any Brewery. Question—Where did he learn it all? As far as I know, and being an old resident of Portland, there is Lager Beer made in this very town as good as any made on this coast, and made in the month of December and dealt out to the public in June. I advise the writer of yesterday's article in the Evening Journal to get better posted. We know all about Lager Beer even if we are not people from the Sound but sound people anyhow. "CONSUMER."

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

A BOLD R[illegible] —Wednesday night a bold robbery occurred at Astoria resulting in the burglars getting away with $300 in coin and a number of articles of considerable value. During the night some person or persons went to the residence of Mr Warren in [illegible], and obtained possession of the key to the safe used at the market of Messrs Warren and McGuire. He or they (every appearance [illegible] that more than one person was concerned with the robbery) then proceeded to the market building and effecting an entrance found easy access to the cash in the safe. The store building is placed on a wharf [illegible] the present stage of water a boat can [illegible] be brought under the piles A trap door opens up through the store floor Nothing could be easier than to row under the building force up the door and climb from the boat into the store [illegible] was evidently the means employed in gaining admittance After getting into the [illegible] the burglars encountered no difficulty in opening the safe and rifling it of its valuable contents However they made one mistake for after abstracting about $300 in coin, they departed leaving $1 000 still in the safe It is supposed that they became [illegible] and fearful of detection and in their [illegible] overlooked the remainder of the coin. When the robbery was first discovered the next morning the surprise of the losers was [illegible] but when they found that a large sum had been left undisturbed in the safe their [illegible] knew no limit It is superfluous to say that the second surprise was far [illegible]able than the first. The safe con[illegible] the money is a small one, and it could [illegible] perfect ease and safety have been lowered [illegible] boat and carried away The wonder [illegible] the burglars did not take the safe off [illegible] rifle the contents at their leisure and [illegible] it overboard The same night the [illegible] of Mr Adair was entered and a [illegible] a number of valuable articles [illegible] off Another house was also burglar[illegible] and some articles abstracted The same [illegible] are supposed to have had a hand in [illegible] several burglaries Up to the present no [illegible] has been obtained of the perpetrators

A DRIVER'S DILEMMA —Considerable mer[illegible] was created yesterday afternoon at the [illegible] Ferry A well-known burner of [illegible], whose name begins with the letter [illegible] tried to haul a quantity of that useful [illegible] on board the ferryboat His team consisted of a horse and a mule The load was [illegible] heavy, and after the team had passed [illegible] down grade and came to the small [illegible] pontoon leading from the main road [illegible] up on to the apron of the boat they [illegible] to a dead halt [illegible] first the mule would [illegible] forward with a determination worthy of [illegible] cause, to draw the wagon and the [illegible] upon the boat but the horse would fail [illegible] time. Then the mule's courage [illegible] perseverance would fail just as the horse [illegible] on by the voice and whip of [illegible] driver would start forward The [illegible] would be the same every time and the [illegible] motion soon demoralized the team [illegible] length they refused to "budge a peg" and [illegible] driver was obliged to back them off of [illegible] boat. Again and again he tried to urge [illegible] team to draw the load up on the boat, but [illegible] result each time was a failure To render [illegible] driver's position still more embarrassing [illegible] portion of the harness gave way At length help arrived in the shape of [illegible] driver of a couple of bulls He assisted his friend in trouble like a genuine good Samaritan, helped him patch up his broken harness [illegible] then hitched on his yoke of trusty [illegible] to the end of the tongue It worked [illegible] magic. No sooner did the mule perceive [illegible] succor had come, than he pricked up his [illegible] and ceased to become an idle specta[illegible] [illegible] the same [illegible] the team followed [illegible] sturdy bullocks, and without an apparent [illegible] the wagon was drawn on to the ferry-[illegible] The whole affair, which lasted some [illegible] afforded the large crowd lots of fun but [illegible] not in the least tend to make the driver [illegible] amiable

THE GEO. W. ELDER. —This fine new steamship, which is soon to be placed on the route [illegible] Portland and San Francisco arrived in safety at the latter port Wednesday 19th inst. Under command of Capt Francis Con[illegible]nor, the old and experienced sailing master the Elder steamed from New York harbor last May, and accomplished the long and stormy voyage around the Horn in 70 days Considering the great distance, the stormy character of the waters traversed, and the rate of speed at which the vessel traveled (the average rate of speed was only two-thirds), the voyage was made in good time. It will probably be a month or more before the new steamer will take her place in the line She is to be placed in the dry dock, have her bottom scraped and painted, her upper works generally overhauled, cabin nicely furnished and her passenger accommodations improved The Geo W. Elder is a propeller and is one of the largest steamers which has ever run between Portland and San Francisco, and is of hand[illegible] improved model When ready to be placed on the line, the steamer will have no superior in point of passenger accommodations and freight capacity The steamer was built at Chester, Pa by John Roach & Sons in 1874. Her dimensions are Length 250 feet [illegible] 38 feet, hold 21½ feet She classes A 1 [illegible] 20 years is built of oak and iron schooner rigged [illegible] 30 50x11, with four bulkheads [illegible] 16 feet, of 1,561 tons register [illegible] by two compound engines The traveling public will certainly have occasion for congratulation over the speedy prospect [illegible] accommodations while accom[illegible] [illegible] between San Francisco and Portland and the company deserve much credit for their outlay of means in making a long needed and welcome acquisition [illegible] their present line

[illegible] WHEAT AND OATS —Mr T E Holmes [illegible] Clackamas county, sends us a fine bunch of [illegible] and oats, accompanying which is the following explanatory note: "I send you [illegible] specimens of Foisy wheat and Lade oats [illegible] was sowed in May, and the oats April [illegible] I did not [illegible] to tell how [illegible] but it is the average of our spring grain [illegible] that kind The grain was raised near Or[illegible] City by myself The two large bunches of wheat came from one grain This is a fair showing of what we raise in Clackamas county." We have measured the stalks and find [illegible] 5½ feet high, which is pretty fair [illegible] considering the lateness of the season when the grain was sown

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The following [illegible] of religious interest are collated from the Advocate and Sentinel

Father White was on a mission to the French residents in the Southern part of the State.

A private note from Rev J A Van Anda of Boise City gives information that he will be in Portland to spend the coming Sabbath

Father Brondel of Steilacoom is engaged giving the annual spiritual retreat to the Sisters of the Most Holy Names which commenced Wednesday evening

A solemn requiem mass will be sung on Friday morning at the cathedral for the repose of the soul of Father Verboort Services will commence at 10 o clock A M

Next Sunday afternoon a class for Norwegians and Scandinavians will be organized in the Taylor street M E Sunday School A supply of bibles in their language will be provided for such as cannot read the English version

Next Sunday at 4 o clock the Society of St Vincent de Paul will hold their annual general meeting, at which time the reports of the secretary and treasurer for the fiscal year will be read and the names of such members as have been derelict in their duty will be erased from the roll

The recent improvements in the Taylor street church have cost about $1 600, and include the parlor kalsomining of the basement the construction of the gallery in the auditorium the tinting of the walls and the cleaning of the carpets All are very much pleased with the improvements

We learn that Rev P B Chamberlain formerly of this city but now of Walla Walla will preach in the Congregational church on Sabbath next Mr Chamberlain was one of the most faithful and effective pastors that Portland ever had His return although but for a few weeks, will be greeted with a hearty welcome

Rev R Bentley D D of the Taylor street charge has requested of Bishop Harris a transfer to take place about the 1st of September An invalid son now in the East requiring special attention is the occasion of this request Dr Bentley came to Oregon two years ago by special solicitation He has filled the pulpit with marked ability and the necessity of his departure to another field will be greatly regretted by the Conference and members of his present charge

Last Wednesday being the feast of St Vincent de Paul, the members of that excellent practical charity met at their hall and proceeded in a body to the Cathedral where they assisted at 7 o clock mass offered specially for the members of the Society In the afternoon they met again at the hospital grounds where they spent several happy hours surrounded by their families and friends St Michael's college band was present and added much to the occasion by their musical selections

INDIAN WARS

The Americans have had three great Indian wars each raging coincidently with a foreign war. The first was with the Algonquin nations to which the Chippeways belonged led by Pontiac It immediately followed the overthrow of the French power in America. The second was with the Iroquois allies of Great Britain in our revolution The third accompanied the second war with England, when Tecumseh roused all the tribes between Lake Erie and the Gulf The Apache war in Arizona was a consequent of the Mexican war and our occupation of the southern plains We are now fighting Indians whose hands were first raised against us while the rebellion was at its height If there are twenty five thousand Sioux of all kinds, they are equal to the whole number of Indians east of the Mississippi when we met Pontiac in war one hundred and twenty years ago That was the number of Indians computed between the Mississippi and the Atlantic in 1755 by Mr Parkman Pontiac attacked every fort from Niagara and Pittsburg to Detroit and Mackinac. The Sioux are now fenced out from our settlements by a line of forts built along the water channels of the Missouri, Yellowstone and Platte most of which have been erected since the rebellion as their names indicate Fort Reno Fort Lincoln Fort Rice Fort Sully, Fort R[illegible], etc The removal of the Eastern Sioux to the plains was promptly followed by running railroads to the Pacific, and to Sioux City and Bismarck, on the Missouri river The former and the latter roads, designed to go through to the Pacific, were obnoxious to the Sioux as they crossed the hunting region, the last subsistence for the Dakota in a state of nature The end of the Northern Pacific Railroad, Bismarck is the base of supplies for the posts in the land of the Dakota, which are communicated with by [illegible] running once a month These steamers go several hundred miles up the current to [illegible] the junction of the Yellowstone with the Missouri Both rivers are navigable The Yellowstone and its branches of which the Big Horn and the Rosebud are two, flow northeastward and all its leading branches come from the south side as the Rocky Mountains lie there and emit the snows and springs It is 800 miles from everywhere to the spot where the Sioux have encountered Sheridan's [illegible] 300 miles north of the Union Pacific, 300 miles from the Missouri, 300 or more from Helena and Bismarck, or Fort Lincoln The Black Hills are far to the southeast and much nearer civilization. The Yellowstone Park, of which so much has been written, is 200 miles to the west. The game of the continent has been driven to that lofty region of streams, canons and mountain ridges, and 20 [illegible] seeking to get subsistence there, are kept in mortal fear of the Dakotas. Their numbers, radical difference of race from other Indians, skill as riders and superior size and courage make them overbearing. Intelligent restless unprincipled and despotic they are made up of bands who have seen civilization and others which seldom or never saw a white man—of outlaws and barbarians, many sided as Mohammedanism

How the Presidents Have Lived—One hundred years ago the heads of government were unable to live on their salaries This fact has been patent from the earliest hours of the government to now The company and state that officials have been obliged to maintain has forbiden any one retiring from his position with a competency. Our fathers would not run in debt therefore they practiced the most rigid economy If the government officers at Washington should learn this lesson the Centennial would be worth more than it will cost. Mrs. Adams was the first mistress of the White House The building was unfinished and unfurnished An Irish shanty [illegible] more comfort. The house could not be warmed and was barely lighted The most graphic letters, written by Mrs Adams [illegible] her suffering in the White House Her week's washing was hung up in the east room. Her style of living adopted not from parsimony, but from necessity, would disgust an ordinary treasury clerk Washington exacted the strictest economy at home that he might serve his country and not impair his private fortune Jefferson was well off when he went into public life He inherited 1,900 acres, which he increased to 5,000 His income, independent of his farm revenue, was $8,000 a year His wife's dowry was $40 000 in [illegible] Had he let public life alone and attended to his estate he would have been a rich man His public career closed in 1809 For 18 years he was absent from Monticello and [illegible] of these years were passed abroad He returned to find his estate ruined, his property squandered his fortune scattered All attempts to retrieve his fortune were in vain He was adjudged a bankrupt New York city sent him a donation of $8 500 and other cities were alike generous Jackson had a style of his own Like a good soldier, he lived within his income At the Rip Raps in the summer in a low farm house coat off, feet in slippers chair tipped back a cob pipe in his mouth he gave audience to ambassadors Van Buren had a private fortune of his own Pierce by rigid economy carried $10 000 out of the White House No clerk in the custom house lives in as economical a style as did bachelor President James Buchanan President Lincoln saved half of his salary during his term of office

There are no new developments in monetary matters. Though trade is dull the number of callers at the bank are reported to be quite as numerous as usual but outside of checking and depositing the amount of business is not large the usual summer dullness having evidently set in For the next six weeks or until merchants return from their vacations and the busy work [illegible] for the fall movement the banks are not likely to experience any great degree of activity There is a fair supply of capital to meet the demand now current, which is not voluminous

On the last semi monthly collection day in San Francisco there was a disposition to work off as much silver in the payment of bills as possible and of course a counter disposition to receive as little as possible The adjustment of these differences naturally led to more or less ill feeling and by the time the sun went down there was quite a general desire that some [illegible] action should be had on the silver question [illegible] the question [illegible] comes round [illegible] as high as 8 per cent. discount [illegible] ing silver for gold [illegible] ness where even [illegible] entire margin of profits [illegible] at all the level [illegible] per cent for the [illegible] unless [illegible] limited coinage which its value will [illegible] by the market [illegible] bullion [illegible]

The Wool Trade

Reports from different parts [illegible] Washington Territory [illegible] sheep [illegible] flocks [illegible] least [illegible] very [illegible] New York [illegible] noticing the same [illegible] position among wool growers elsewhere says

Probably [illegible] the [illegible] when it will again be [illegible] the breed of sheep The product [illegible] kinds of wool of combing [illegible] delaine varieties has never been equal to the demand and those kinds have always borne a relatively high value Improved breeds especially of the long wooled varieties are [illegible] a good account of themselves hereafter Whatever a business does not pay there is a rush to sell out and [illegible] will work at present Sheepmen who have patience will hold on They will do no more than thin out the poor sheep and push up the grades until they have as good as can be found in any part of the world It is with sheep as it is with stock or with cattle—there must be selections flocks must be culled some pains must be taken with breeding stock

Domestic Produce

The latest telegrams from Liverpool note a decline of wheat in that market equal to 6d within a week with but little to induce a hope of any early recovery It now seems improbable that the Eastern question will create any rupture between the great powers of Europe and with that possibility removed and the prospects of abundant harvests everywhere together with the large receipts by importation at Liverpool and London since the first of June sufficient reason for the positive decline is found The present outlook is even worse than that of a week ago and while holders are only inclined to accept present rates under the pressure of necessity purchasers are quite as indifferent So there is nothing whatever to produce any activity in the market, and the few lots which are changing hands serve but little purpose in fixing the market. Harvest has begun in some sections of the State and new wheat may be expected in small quantities within a week or ten days. Flour is in fair supply at unchanged quotations There is a fair call from Northern points and a good local trade but shipments to San Francisco are lighter than usual Oats are but little lower in the local market but as shipments are falling off and the new crop will soon be on hand the tendency is downward Mill feed and hay are lower as will be seen by our quotations. The new crop of the latter is abundant, and the market is well supplied with it There is a somewhat stronger feeling in the market for provisions, with lessening receipts There is believed to be but a limited surplus of bacon and lard in the country and some are apparently sanguine of high prices the coming fall Rates here are steady at our figures The receipts of butter and cheese from the interior are rather lighter than the average for the season with some improvement in quality over former years Eggs are quoted still at 30 cents, with a tolerably active demand for the local trade. Potatoes are plentiful from the new crop which sell at 75@90 cents per bushel against 45@50c for old. Dried apples are reported much lower in San Francisco as the product of the new crop is being put on the market The stock here is only sufficient for the local trade and rates are maintained In the way of seasonable small fruits there is a full supply in the market but prices are very difficult to give Cherries are quoted at 6@10c raspberries and blackberries are governed by the quality and wants of the market from day to day they are very low at present

The wool market has a very little better tone but buyers refuse to advance quotations The receipts are large and shipments heavy Latest Eastern advices indicate a better demand for choice qualities common remaining very dull and large lots very difficult to place
